Refunds Boggle Sanitation Board

Boggled by the monumental task of issuing refunds to 25,000 residents of Daly City, Colma and unincorporated Colma who were overcharged for sewer service, directors of the North San Mateo County Sanitation District voted Monday to postpone action on the matter until next

The discovery of the error by residents caused the directors to declare last week that the district will recompute all bills, but Richard Dwyer, an outside accountant hired by the district, said Monday that recalculating all bills could cost as much as $50,000,

The board decided, instead, to hire Dwyer, along with "any organization he wishes to call upon for resources," to have ready by next Monday alternative methods for rectifying the erroneous charges Dwyer, who charges $10 to $40 per hour for his company's services, said he surely will request help from Resources, Engineering and Management (REM) of South San Francisco, which charges $12 to $35 per

Directors indicated they were reluctant to state how much money the district will have to refund, but that sewer were over charged 30 percent

Robert Eppler, project manager for REM, said the district will have to refund about $400,000.

David Gehre, district general manager, resigned last week after the seriousness of the problem became known citing a desire to 'pursue other opportunities in the waste management field.'

Directors said they favor issuing refund checks, as opposed to crediting a homeowner's account for the amount overcharged.

Dwyer remarked that no method of refunding will be perfect since there have been changes in home ownership and other factors that make figuring the refunds difficult.

The error in computation of the sewer charges came during the changeover from a fee included on water billings to a charge on property tax bills.

Delighted with their tax savings due to Proposition 13, many home owners had not noticed that they were charged 88 cents instead of the authorized 59 cents per 100 cubic feet (750,000 gallons) of water on their most recent bills. Director James Fitzgerald said REM, which calculated the bills, apparently added a factor and never told us" when the firm discovered that the bills would not bring in the $1.2 million necessary to run the sewage treatment plant.

Fitzgerald said the financing problem is offset by a $340,000 windfall from property taxes that the district didn't expect

Eppler defended REM's handling of the bills, remarking, Our method of figuring the bills was to the board How well it was understood is a different matter.

The board authorized Chairman William Schumacher to arrange for Daly City to develop a contract for an interim manager, as well as to develop specifications that will be used to hire Gehre's replacement as district manager.

Dwyer said he belives the district should hire a new manager with a strong financial background.

Nov. 18.

Just when things might have started to settle down, the shootings of San Francisco Mayor George Moscone and Supervisor Harvey Milk last Monday started the phones jingling again.
Since the center always receives more requests for help during the holidays, Ms. Ross is asking all volunteers to spend extra time at the center through New Year's Day.

Most people who call want to talk about the recent events, but the number of suicides in San Mateo County hasn't increased in the last two weeks. Ms. Ross said she isn't surprised.

Although the loss of political leaders has a major impact, she theorized that people usually reel so numb that they go into a holding pattern.

In fact, she said the only time that this country has experienced a major drop in the suicide rate was during the three days in 1963 following the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

"Politicians are sort of paternalistic figures who maintain order and put stability in our lives. When they are gone, people typically react, Where is the order? Who will take she said.

Ms. Ross explained that it's reas suring to most callers to hear that their feelings of anger, depression and guilt over the Guyana and Mos-cone-Milk occurrences are not unucole-with coefficients are not mu-sual. "It's a normal reaction to an abnormal situation," she said. Studies show that the thought of suicide most often arises out of a feeling of overwhelming loss of whatever is most important to a person. Some people contemplate suicide when a loved one dies; others think about it after suffering a damaging blow to their career, a reduction in self-esteem or the loss of a physical part of the body.

At this stage, Ms. Ross said, people 'go into a devastating depres sion. It's as if part of you has died.

How people handle depression is a subject of prime concern to the Suicide Prevention and Crisis Center

"Our society has done much to instill the notion that there is something weak and cowardly about asking for help, that it is unmasculine as well. We find that fewer men call our center and more take their own lives. I think it literally is true that many men would rather die than ask for help," she said.

Aware that there are some individuals who will never call an agency like hers, Ms. Ross said, "I would ask people like that to turn to one trusted friend or colleague and

They have been very instrumental in saving people's lives." Mass suicide, such as occurred in Guyana, is a different matter. Ms. Ross attributes the taking of those lives to two things: altruistic suicide—giving a life for a cause that the person believes is greater than himself - and coercion.

"In Guyana, we have evidence that not all people willingly commit-ted suicide, that guns were turned on some of them," she remarked.

She said the 200 calls that come in each month from individuals con-cerned about others committing suicide are "remarkably on target

She said it is wise to watch surviving members of the Peoples Temple as well as anyone who seems severely depressed by the recent tragedies, because "there is a contagion factor in suicide that is very disturbing. The reasoning people use is, 'I'm trying to cope and I'm having a hard time. If 'X' out there who is brighter and smarter than me is having trouble, how I cope?

The syndrome is most prevalent in young females under the age of 30, she said, giving as an example the increased number of suicides by that set after Marilyn Monroe apparently took her own life.

Suicide was a serious problem in San Mateo County even before the

Ms. Ross said the county's high divorce and alcoholism rates and its large number of transients and nuclear families, both of which lack traditional support systems, all contibute to the suicide rate.

Most disturbing is the rise in adolescent suicides from a total of three in 1967 to a dozen in 1977.

Ms. Ross has found that most adolescents communicate their despondency to a friend before attempting suicide; so she has spent much of her time informing students and teachers at local schools of the services available at the Suicide Prevention and Crisis Center

'Our goal is to train more people in recognizing and being able to respond to the warning signals," she said, adding, "nothing is sadder for me than dealing with someone after-'My God, why wards that says, didn't I call vou'

Differing Approaches to Conservation

By ARVILLE FINACOM

In this day of declining "pristine wilderness," William Penn Mott Jr. and Lund Johnson share a similar sense of initiative in restoration and management of land for public appreciation

Although Mott, as president of the California State Parks Foundation, deals with plans for acreage far greater than that owned and administered privately by Johnson, the exuberance displayed by both men as they talk about their schemes to protect and manage history and nature can be described best in one word

Mott, former innovative superintendent of parks for the city of Oakland from 1945 to 1960 and subsequently an official of both the East Bay Regional and California State Parks systems, resigned from public payrolls in 1968 to devote full time to developing the idea for a nonprofit foundation to fund acquisition and restoration of suitable park lands.

Basing their hopes firmly on the theory that people would give money to a foundation for a special project that they would not offer a public agency to do the same task, Mott and several others met with Gov. Ronald Reagan in August 1969 and received the state's official

With the backing of prestigious civic, financial and conservation leaders, the foundation incorporated in October 1969, for "the primary purpose of receiving bequests, gifts of cash, securities, real estate and other property for use by the California State Parks System.

Its first project — "Poppy Park" — with initial costs underwritten by Joseph Long of the Long's Drug Store chain and with the cooperation of many other nonprofit groups, led to establishment of the California Wildflower Reserve in the high desert near Lancaster in Southern California. As a side note, I was one among many California State PTA members working in cooperation with the foundation "selling" orange, yellow and black paper poppies as mementoes of donations.

According to Mott, who divides his work time between the foundation's downtown Oakland office and the Oakland Zoo where he is head of the East Bay Zoological Association, a private, nonprofit foundation has many advantages over state or local tax supported agencies. Since such a group is not tied to the lumbering wheels of public bureaucracy, its directors can solicit funds, make immediate decisions, avoid the time consuming, sometimes corrupt, bid system and move far more quickly in accomplishing goals.

As an example, the desert interpretive center at Anza-Borrego State Park was completed nearly two years ahead of the parks system schedule because of foundation involvement in planning and development.

Currently Mott's energies are devoted to raising funds for several projects including "Parks for the Future" which will take initially two areas of "derelict" land and rebuild them ecologically.

When Lund and Laura Johnson left their Peninsula home for a new one in the Sierra foothills, neither looked forward to a quiet life. Long active in Menlo Park/Palo Alto civic affairs — Lund retired from Safeway's Palo Alto "front office" in 1972 — both knew retirement would be more than relaxation.

of what their eyes see from any point on the property. the Johnsons planted an apple orchard and 40,000 pine and Douglas fir seedlings, some 1,500 of these ready to harvest this season

Following the contour of the land, they built winding roads and developed a foot trail system through their tree plantation into the oak woodland edging it leading to wear softened granite outcroppings used by generations of Miwok Indians as grinding stones

Scattered patches of gold-green lichen grow on the granite. Smoothly worn oblong pestles sit in some of the holes often filled, after a rain, with water pools reflecting both tree branches and the sky overhead.

To the weathered barns and buildings already on the land they added a home for themselves and one for their ranch foreman built "old style" to blend into what they consider a significantly historical natural setting. A farm pond filled by seepage, a windmill, split rail fences and wooden trestle picnic tables complete the farm's rustic image which includes surprisingly plenty of unobtrusive, off-road parking.

To the thrill of a "choose-your-own-tree" excursion, the Johnsons add their own gregarious presence. They try to greet personally all their guests even when the number runs into the high hundreds as it did one weekend last season.

Since the Johnsons consider themselves "everyone's grandparents," a visit to Forest Farm, about a two-hour drive from North County, takes on the aura of an excursion "over the river and through the woods." From Stockton, travel east on Highway 26 nine miles beyond Mokelumne Hill to Ridge Road. Turn right and follow

"It's a month long Open House," say the Johnsons welcome the public from Thanksgiving weekend until nearly Christmas Eve. Hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekends; noon to 5 on weekdays

Apples set in brimming bushel baskets near the picnic area are free for the taking. The only fee is $10.95 to cut a Christmas tree - heights range between five and 10 feet - plus an additional 50 cents for those who want trees baled in plastic mesh for easier loading and hauling. The Johnson furnish saws for cutting. A visit to the farm does not obligate one to purchase a tree, though most visitors do find one to their liking.

Although pruning, shaping and planting trees as well as generally learning the lore of the region and improving their property occupies the Johnsons during much of the other 11 months of the year. Lund does find time to on the county board of directors for the California State Farm Bureau. He also is an active member of the Republican Central Committee for Calaveras County, serving in the recent election as campaign manager for successful congressional candidate Norm Shumway.

I doubt if Mott and Lund Johnson will ever meet. but I find it interesting to compare the two, both men of vision in a time when such an ability to see the value in subtly "managed" nature may be the most precious gift

'Preemie' Survival Rate: Questions of Ethics

By JANET PARKER

Medical machinery hummed as the tiny body in the incubator moved rest-

His bones showed clearly through frail limbs, not yet fattened from nourishment. His fingernails and toenails hadn't even emerged yet and only a few wisps of hair adorned the infant's

It'll be months before the tiny fig-ure resembles a typical, plump newborn, and even then his parents won't be entirely assured their baby is free of abnormalities.

But, a proud mother had decorated the incubator with a few stuffed toys and placed a knitted cap on the child's head. It will probably spend the first two months of its life in that hospital ward and the bill will be astronomical - $50,000 to $70,000.

The intensive care of newborns particularly prematures — is an entirely new realm of medicine. Neonatal medicine has emerged as a highly specialized field aimed at saving babies considered hopeless cases only 10 years ago. At the same time, the decreasing size of the survivors is raising a multitude of ethical and

"In the good old days, we'd just put a premature baby in oxygen and wait to see how it would go, nent San Mateo pediatrician Marvin Auerback, a cardiology specialist. "Now, we're committed to doing all we can."

The textbook definition of a premature infant is a baby born after fewer than 37 weeks gestation. The problem is that many babies born very premature - as early as 28 weeks gestation - have birth defects. Some of those defects are tolerable but others are

"At what point do we say this baby is so severely damaged, we can't go out of our way to save it? The question is, what constitutes severe damage?'' Auerback said

"The barrier of what you can treat successfully has moved," said Dr. Roderic Phibbs, director of the intensive care nursery at the University of California at San Francisco Medical Center. The neonatologist has witnessed great strides in the care of preemies. 'Ten years ago, he noted, half of all babies with hyaline membrane disease — a common lung ail-ment in prematures — died. Now, only 15 percent succumb to the illness

"But, as we move the barrier, the question is are we going to get any survivors in the long run and are they going to be any good," Phibbs related.

"We're always worried every time we make a step down," he added. The U.C. team has found every time it breaks a barrier — saving 28-week gestation period babies, for example — there's a significant incidence of handicans in these babies three and handicaps in those babies three and four years later.

As the barriers are collapsing physicians are having to balance deli-cate ethical and medical conflicts in determining what babies have a rea sonable chance for a normal life and which babies have so many handicaps that any glimmer of hope is a dim one.

Neonatologists are being forced to answer questions like these

· Is it ever right to withdraw life support from an infant with a poor prognosis?

is it ever right not to resuscitate

- an infant at birth? · Should a cost-benefit ratio be
- included in decision making?
- Who decides the rights of the
- · Is it ever right to reduce care on the grounds of excessive cost?

'You can support an individual long time," said Dr. Ronald Ariagno, Stanford University assistant professor of pediatrics. "It doesn't mean you can ever correct their problem."

Severely premature babies born in any of San Mateo County's hospitals are transported as soon as safely possible — usually within hours — to a hospital that provides Level III care for infants. Hospitals here provide only basic, Level I care

It's impossible, Ariagno said, to have an intensive care nursery in every hospital. That's why the California Regional Medical Program split the state making Stanford the dispatch center for Northern California.

An obstetrician at Mills Hospital, for example, can contact Stanford dispatch and immediately find out what Bay Area hospital can accommodate a premature baby.

A medical team from Stanford escorts the baby by ambulance, if local, or by helicopter directly to the

The most likely destinations are Stanford and U.C. San Francisco medical centers. Both hospitals have physicians and researchers who have pioneered in the care of prematures.

Both hospitals accommodate some 25 infants each, including full-term babies in critical condition.

The constant companion of a promature is the nurse who plays a criti-cal role in the infant's care, Phibbs related. In the most extreme cases, one nurse is assigned to a single baby fulltime. Barbara Morray, a U.C. senior staff nurse, has been working on the ward for five years. Asked what has changed in that time, she points to a baby she's washing, a month-old infant born 14 weeks early.

"This is a good example of a baby that wouldn't have survived five years ago," Ms. Morray said. "Five years ago, this baby's lung disease would have been so horrendous, it couldn't It's frustrating, she contended, to spend hours of time and care on a baby with obvious severe problems who may not even survive.

"We generally try to be as objective as possible," she related. "You can sit and discuss the quality of life for hours on philosophical terms."

Physicians, she said, are good at presenting the facts to families — even the strong-willed parents who are determined their grossly handicapped babies will make it.

"Over time, their enthusiasm dwindles and the reality creeps in," Ms. Morray said. According to Auerback, 10 years ago, doctors were wondering if they could save a baby weighing less than 1,500 grams (3 pounds, 5 ounces). The mortality rate for babies under 1,000 grams (2 pounds, 3 ounces) was nearly 100 percent Today, according to Ariagno, the survival rate for babies born at less than 1,000 grams is about 80 percent. In fact, he noted, Bay Area neona tolgists recently gathered to specifi-cally discuss latest developments in saving babies weighing 750 grams and less. Babies that small, he said, are still a high risk. A year ago, however, they seldom survived at all It's interesting and alarming to note. Ariagno said, that the barrier of survival is falling close to 24 weeks gestation — the maximum gestation period allowed for legal abortions. It seems clear that some healthy babies are being aborted while doctors are Evaluating the prospects for any premature, Ariagno explained, is a group process. The team that meets in conference includes physicians, nurses, a respiratory therapist and family members.

struggling to save many premature

"There are situations it's fairly clear the child can not survive," Ariagno said. "You provide what is optimum for parent and child. You just deal with human needs.

It might mean a decision to stop ventilating and allow the parents and their infant "to have time together,"

There's a baby in the ward now, Ariagno said, for whom there appears to be no cure for his medical problem A decision whether or not to continue maximum intensive care will have to

One 550 gram baby — extremely premature — was receiving intensive care but, among other problems, was bleeding in its lungs and brain. The tiny infant "was unwilling to make any attempt to breathe on his own, Ariagno declared.

"It became apparent major complications were occuring beyond a reasonable doubt the baby would surhe related. The choice was between continuing to provide care, possibly extending into weeks and months, or sitting down with the family and deciding if it's appropriate to continue intensive care.

In his book, "Ethics of Newborn Intensive Care," Jonsen reports of a conference in Sonoma on ethical issues in neonatal intensive care in which participatnts were asked, among other things, if it would ever be right to withdraw life support from a "clearly diagnosed, poor prognosis infant." The unanimous answer was a qualified

Care could be eased, they agreed, if a combination of things occur like gross defects, the baby is slowly dying or obviously unable to sustain itself or continued therapy prolongs present

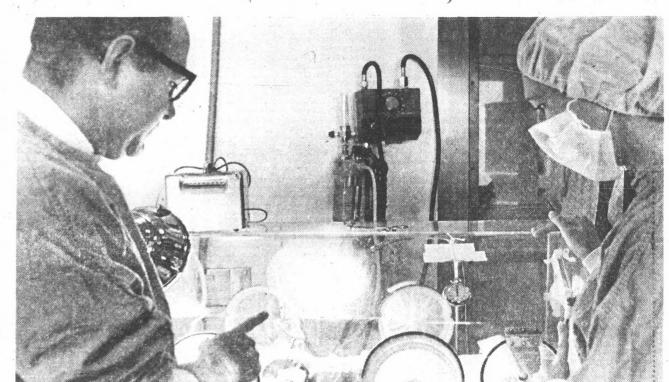

In that same book. Phibbs says neonatologists are encouraged by the dropping mortality rate in premies but are aware of "our obligation to determine whether the survivors are nor-mal, since improved survival is not an advance unless accompanied by a proportional decrease in survivors with Phibbs said the number of newborn intensive care survivors with severe neurological defects, fortunately, is also declining for babies at very low birth weights.

However, new medical techniques are making it easier to breathe for the non-breathing infant and sometimes results in resuscitation of infants who have suffered irreparable damage. This, he said, raises obvious questions about the desirability of saving certain

"There are handicaps. That's the risk you take. You have to explain that to the parent," Phibbs said. It's sometimes very hard to identify the baby with only modest problems and sometimes those defects won't show up for

of kids who should have had terrible damage and they don't," he said.

Legislation in recent years has assured that infants are covered by parent's medical insurance from Day One. Since the cost of care can range up to $1,000 a day, immediate cover age is crucial.

For uninsured parents, Crippled Childrens' Services often pays hospital

It's always been expensive to care for premature infants, Phibbs insisted. It's just that the public is demanding more information than ever before on the cost of health care.

"People tend to focus on the very small babies with the biggest bills," Phibbs said. "In doing so, they neglect the biggest number of babies who are saved at small cost.

He pointed to a very small baby in the ward, born at the lower limits of the survival barrier. It's first few weeks were a struggle but he thinks the baby will survive.

"If he survives, he's going to have very large hospital bill," Phibbs aid. "But, while he's there, dozens of other babies will come in for four or five days at a time and go home, for a few thousand dollars.'

Auerback noted that the sicker the baby is, the more it will cost to keep him alive. One positive effect of the high cost of premature care is that fewer children are having severe abnormalities. An example, he said, is the declining incidence of cerebral palsy. It might cost $40,000 to save the child from severe handicap but that child may have spent a lifetime in an institution at public expense 10 years

"That is not a medical decision and I'm not suggesting it is," Ariagno said pointing to the cost-benefit question. "We don't ask costs. My job as a doctor is to give the best and most appropriate medical care possible."

His mother. Rita Carballar of San Mateo, was only six months pregnant when she began having severe labor pains and was rushed to Mills Hospital. There, at 4:20 a.m., her very premature, 2-pound, 1-ounce son, was born in a restroom.

She saw her tiny child only briefly before he was California at San Francisco Medical Center where he spent the first three months of his life.

Mrs. Caballar and her husband, Robert, hadn't even selected a pediatrician yet and they had just begun parenting classes the mies — fattened. week before 'It was a helpless feel-"When he was first born, it was pretty sad. I really didn't understand what was going on as far as his being born too early.

That was more than two years ago, on Aug. 19, 1976. Today, Robbie is one of the survivors, an apparently healthy. 24-pound toddler who is gradually shedding remnants of his early risk-

In those two years, however, the care of premature babies has progressed sig-nificantly. The odds of sur-vivial for babies like Robbie — whose weight plunged to 1-pound, 10-ounces after he was born have improved.

Even so, Robbie was a $100,000 baby. His hospital care cost nearly $1,000 a day. Fortunately, his parents' health plan covered most of the tremendous medical bill.

Robbie's weight and his health fluctuated for several weeks. The doctors at U.C., his parents said, didn't spare them the hard "They came right out and told us everything," Mrs. Carballar said. "They talked about the bad just as much as the good. "They didn't pull any punches," he added. "They told us all the different complications that could

Despite his size, Robbie never required surgery. His body organs functioned well although he required a respirator his first month. His lungs were merely little membranes that had a lot of growing left to do.

The young parents were alarmed when their son's head started to enlarge before his body. The baby before his body. The baby endured three spinal taps before his body began to catch up and the concern was eased. He also had a heart murmur that disappeared on its course.

A constant concern with any premature baby, pediatriclans noted, is apnea — a sudden cessation of breath. A monitor with an alarm attached constantly warns

"It was touch and go for a long, long time," she said. "I had no hope whatsoever. A lot of things could have happened."

There were many sleepless nights when she would call the hospital well after midnight just to see how her child was doing. They visited every evening after work while other babies, she noted, had no visitors at all.

> The Carballars brought Robbie home on Thanksgiving weighing 4 pounds.

'We sat up and watched him sleep all night," she recalled. It was difficult to care for him at first, providing her with a fulltime job. There was constant concern about lung conges-

If she had to do it over again, she said, she would have waited until he was at least 5 pounds before bringing him home.

Since then Robbie has undergone three ear opera-tions for insertion of tubes that aid his hearing. For a while, there was concern that his thigh joints hadn't developed properly and his parents weren't certain he would be able to walk.

Now, however, Robbie is bounding about the house, evidence his bones did mature properly.

There are still a few concerns - like whether the indentation on the roof of his mouth apparently from a breathing tube will affect his speech. Or. whether his hearing will be normal.

There were many anxious moments, the parents recalled, when doctors examined Robbie's head or tested his hearing. While he was in intensive care, five babies like him died.

And, there was confusion and guilt in the beginning, they said. That, neonatologists note, is typical.

"I couldn't accept that this was happening to me,,' Mrs. Carballar said.

Jana plans for the future, to continue her fine academic achievement and then move on to college where she plans to major in public administration.

Second place was given to the Mechanical Puppets, composed of three great dancers: Robert Thompson, Willie Reagan and Glenn Grant.

Third place was given to the Mystic Touch. This was trio who sang to the hit "Olivia." The singers were Barris Mitchell, Billy Kennebrew and Randy Bibb.

But we can't forget the expertise of our judges. They were students Alex Hong and Cathy Ryan; husband and wife teams, Mr. and Mrs. Clemons and Mr. and Mrs. McLean

As you know, Open Campus has been a main topic of discussion in the JUHSD. The Student Advisory Board along with Student Body presidents and Dr. Panagoulias worked very hard to get an Open Campus on a trial

The Student Advisory Board agreed to make an evaluation and present it to the school board after this trial. Due to the strike, the Advisory Board was unable to make a complete evaluation in such short time, and asked for an extension. Tuesday night, after many presentations pro and con to Open Campus, the Board granted this extension until Jan. 16. Therefore students of JUHSD, beware that Open Campus is still on trial. Please use it wisely.

We would like to commend the Jefferson spectators at the Terra Nova-Jefferson football game for their fine conduct. Even in a very disappointing situation one and all retained their composure and showed what fine upstanding students Jefferson truly has. And special thanks is given to all the faithful parents and alumni who rooted on the team throughout the season.

The crowds are gone, the cheerleaders have moved on, and the pain of losing the championship game has faded. What remains are the memories of one of the best football teams Jefferson has ever had.

Rated last by the other league coaches, the team came close enough to the title to make sure no one underestimates them again for quite a while.

One reason for the respect earned was the successfulness of the team, 5-2 in league play. The team abounded with great talent. A powerful line including Reginald Camp, Clay Younger and Anthony White allowed leading rushers Richard Rogers and Doug Cheatum to use their abilities to the fullest. Special notice should also be taken to Nolan Smith for his fine talent and leadership both on and off the field.

Another reason was because of the teams spirit and attitude. The Indians showed the courage and integrity necessary to break through the stigma of being the laughing stock of the league, no championship in 54 years and some losing streaks to rival schools of up to 20

A great amount of credit for this courage is given to Coach Jack Burgett. His faith and dedication inspired his players. His expertise in coaching — which at times made one yearn for the easy life of bootcamp — made them winners. His efforts have earned him the love and respect of every player and the thanks of the entire

By STEVE KAUFMAN Westmoor has begun to pick up the pace as the annual Christmas Break nears. Competition has already begun in many people's minds as they prepare for the yearly Canned Food and Clothes Drive.

This event is the most popular fund-raiser at Westmoor. The event is Westmoor. The event is simple: Members of the four classes collect canned foods and clothes donated the members of the community. These are stored at various student houses and on the morning of December 15, 1978, the final day before the Christ-mas Recess, the clothes are picked up and weighed and the cans are counted. The winner is the class with the most cans and the most pounds of clothes. For the past three years, since they have been at West-moor, the Senior Class of 1979 has won this event. Of course, they are looking to make it four in a row, but the competition will be lose. All proceeds go towards the Goodwill Industries, so please give generously if a student omes to your home Although it is competition. we all are winners in this event.

Westmoor's PTA is having its annual dinner/dance on January 20, 1979. This annual event has been a success in the past and all monies taken in directly benefit Westmoor. This is their only fundraiser during the school year and the proceeds help keep this important organization functioning. For information and tickets phone any of these numbers: 992-4706, 756-8736, 756-7556, or hrough Westmoor at 756-3434

Best of luck to all seniors who took the state mandated test. This exam is required of all graduating seniors and was given on November 29 in the morning. Hope all did well.

Best of luck to West-moor's Concert Band. They will be giving their annual performance in the school's Little Theater on December 13 at 7:30 p.m. Admission is free and there will be a special saxophone ensemble highlighting the event. Also, a note of congratulations for a fine con cert at Holy Angels School on December 4. They performed before the entire school and did very well.

A vote of thanks should be extended to Student Advisory Board Member Babbie Freiberg. She is the head of this group and has put a tremendous amount of time and effort into another extension of the Open Campus Trial Period. She has had to make numerous speeches before the School Board and has held numerous conferences with many members of the business community to try and solve some of the problems regarding Open Cam-pus. # A SPECIAL LIMITED OFFER FROM THE TIMES

The $3.25 monthly, home-delivery rate to The Times was established on June 1, 1974. Since that time, the costs of producing and delivering a newspaper have increased tremendously.

FOR EXAMPLE:

during the past 41/2 years, a ton of newsprint has risen from $213.50 to $320.00, an increase of 50%. On February 1, 19/9, it will be increased another $25.00 which will place it 62% above the June 1, 1974, level.

During 1979, wages and salaries will be approximately 50% above the 1974 level.

MANY OTHER EXPENSES HAVE INCREASED SIMILARLY!

All of the increased expenses have necessitated a subscription rate increase, which was announced on November 30, 1978. The monthly home delivery rate for The Times is now $3.75 per month, still less than 15 cents per issue.

During the month of December, 1978, however, we are extending a Special Annual Home-delivery Offer of $39.00,* a savings of $6.00 for the year.

In order to take advantage of this special offer, simply fill out this coupon and mail it, along with your check for $39.00, to: The Times Circulation Dept., P.O. Box 5400, San Mateo, CA.

Hurry, though! Offer expires December 31, 1978.

*subscription extension for vacation credit and refunds for the difference between the $39.00 paid and the used portion of the annual subscription at $3.75 per month, are part of this special annual subscription offer.

(This concludes a two-part series on the "record" number of Hall of Fame players with whom Marino Pieretti roomed during his major league career. Last week he talked of Luke Appling and Early Wuynn. This week, of Bob Feller, Bob Lemon and Robin Roberts.)

Marino Pieretti's association with Bob Feller lasted only two days, when Marino was with Cleveland in 1950. for basically the same reasons as his association with Luke Appling had lasted only a week. "Feller was an experience," recalls Pieretti, still in wonderment. "His room was like New Year's Eve at the Mardi Gras; it was like living in the middle of Broadway. He was the king of public relations men. Everywhere he went he was surrounded by 10 reporters, radio and TV men. He really never had a moment to himself. I don't know how he concentrated on baseball.

"I think that's why Bob became a pilot and had his own plane. I guess it was his way of getting away from people. But boy, was that airplane expensive for him.

"We had a rule. If you were five minutes late to practice, it cost $25, and for every minute thereafter, $5. When we were at home, Feller was always flying to practice from some place. Many a time practice would be started, and here would come Mr. Feller flying over the stadium, dipping his wings to us on the way to the airport. Lou Boudreau would just smile and say There's more money for our party.

"Yeh, Feller was an unusual roomie. Everywhere he went, he would bring his paraphernalia: phonograph records, phonograph player, recording machine, dumbells and other weights - and who knows what else Once we were taking a train from Phillie to Boston and he was carrying his usual big trunk-like suitcase, another big suitcase and a hatbox size suitcase. The porter asked Bob if he would carry his bags for him, so Bob says sure. But the porter couldn't lift one of them

Bob Lemon was also only a two day roomie in 1950, but the brief encounter had nothing to do with Lemon's nocturnal habits. His regular roommate was sick and had been left home. Pieretti was a substitute. "Bob was a happy-go-lucky guy who had more natural stuff than any pitcher I've ever seen. You have to realize that there was a guy who was already a big league outfielder and third baseman before he became a pitcher. He was a good outfielder - saved Feller's opening-day no-hitter with a tremendous catch — and hit a long ball. But he wasn't the kind of guy who was going to hit consistently, so they converted him. Yeh, he could beat you with his arm, his bat and his glove."

Lemon also provided Pieretti with two of his favorite pieces of baseball trivia . . . that Lemon had 'probably the best knuckleball in the business,' and that when Pieretti was with Washington, he came within hours of being traded for Lemon, straight-up.

"They wouldn't let Bob throw his knuckler, but only because nobody could catch it. It was explosive. Lemon thre with only once that I know of in a regular game. There was a man on third in the last inning, he threw it, Jim Hagan AND the batter missed it by 10 feet and the winning run came across. Boudreau told him to forget it. He had a great slider, great curve, good sinking fastball and control, so what else did he need? Funny thing, the only guy who could handle Lemon's knuckler was Joe Gordon, and they weren't going to let him catch."

As for the near Pieretti-for-Lemon trade, four days after the negotiations began, Cleveland started Lemon, he pitched a one or two hitter, and that was it - the end of negotiations for Pieretti.

Pieretti best remembers Roberts for two things that he was the fastest working pitcher he ever saw, and that he was able to become so great without ever intimidating anybody with his fastball.

'Once we were playing Cincy and before the game there was a clubhouse meeting and Mayo Smith makes a remark to Roberts about how Ted Kluszewski and the other Reds sluggers could hit Roberts because he never knocked them down. He says to Roberts, 'Maybe you oughta shave them once in a while," and Mr. Roberts pulls himself up and says, 'I don't believe in throwing at anybody, because I wouldn't want to hit somebody and hurt him. I feel that if I can't get a man out with my good stuff, why should I try to do it hurting somebody That day Roberts goes out and pitches a shutout and big Klu goes oh-for-four

Yes, Roberts was a great fella, had a big heart. There wasn't anything he wouldn't do for you. When I was making my second tour of the big leagues somebody stole my glove and Roberts gave me one of his brand new gloves. I had it almost the rest of my career.

Jefferson High School's football team almost produced the prep story of the year, if not the century, in the North Peninsula League.

That glove, and some Hall of Fame memories

Had they beaten Terra Nova on the last game of the season, the district's oldest school would have cinched its first NPL varsity football championship in the 54 years of its existence. But coach Jack Burgett's hardnoses finally ran into some odds they couldn't beat. good, deep squad playing on its home field before a Homecoming crowd.

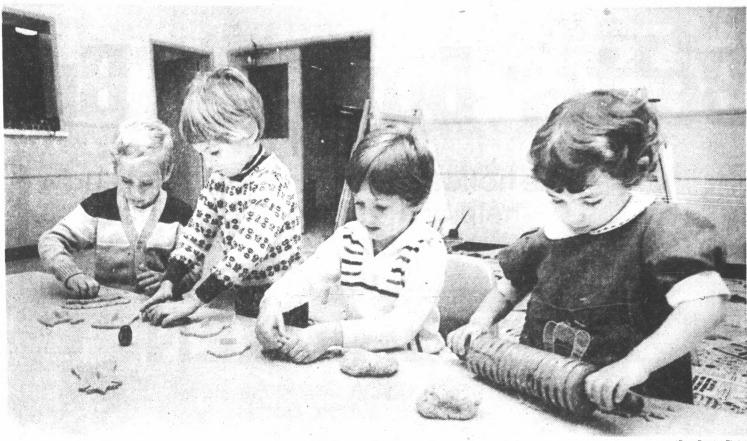

It wasn't JUST that Jeff almost won that first title, or that it was the Daly City school's first winning season in a decade. It was HOW they did it — or almost did it. With virtually the same team that had won two games last year. With a limited (in numbers) squad who had to pray every game that there would be no serious injuries. With a coach, Jack Burgett, under the pressure he had created for himself by having opted to be one of the minority to cross picket lines for almost a month during the teachers' strike. Burgett had had to replace his regular assistant coaches with former non-teaching students, and could get no regular scouting report of

But Burgett, who had told this writer last year, "We're going to surprise a lot of people next season," had a vision ("I was born to coach kids," he continually "and I couldn't help them by standing out there on that picket line"), and wasn't about to let it be blurred. He felt that he had worked hard for four years to bring Jefferson a winning tradition to help to improve the image and self-confidence of a school often misunderstood by the public and the press, and that he owed it to the small band of dedicated kids he had nurtured not to let them down.

Whether one agreed or not with Burgett's decision not to support his fellow coaches and other teaching colleagues during the strike, any sports fan would have to respect what Burgett got from his team.

wasn't, after all, a total loss for Jefferson. They still tied with the powerful favorite, Terra Nova, for second place. They produced the best offense and the two top runners in the NPL in sophomore Doug Cheatum and junior Richard Rodgers (who was also second in the NPL in total offense), and a senior lineman, Reggie Camp, who has a number of major colleges drooling.

Trojans Lose in Triple OT

By RICK EYMER

CUPERTINO - Two former Division II state champions met on the floor of De Anza College Friday night in the opening round of the De Anza Tournament. It took three overtimes to decide the winner between Skyline College (state champs in 1977) and Merced (state champs in 1978), but Skyline finally succumbed 65-58.

It was a see-saw battle from the start. Both teams traded early buckets before Merced got the upper hand and grabbed an 18-8 lead. Skyline was unable to penetrate Merced's top-ranked defense, and took several low percentage shots from the outside. Skyline also lacked offensive board strength, and so was unable to get second shots from underneath.

Merced was able to penetrate inside Skyline's zone defense with good ball control and movement away from the action. Charles Pittman, a 6-8 center for the Blue Dev ils, dominated the inside, blocking four shots and grabbing numerous Merced led by 12 at the half, and Skyline was forced to pay catch-up.

The second hald opened on a promising note — Reggie Love. Skyline's sophomore forward-cen-ter, scored six quick points and added a steal as the Trojans closed the gap to 28-27. Joe Belfry came off the bench to score a go ahead bucket and play extremely tight defense. Belfry is 5-6 and was forced to guard players a foot taller, but held his own, shutting off passing lanes to the inside.

Merced took a 42-38 lead with 4:25 remaining in regulation play and went into a stall. The Blue Devils worked the clock down to 1:00, when Belfry and Love combined to break Skyline forward Brad Levesque grabbed a key defensive rebound with 23 seconds left and scored the tying points.

Skyline controlled the tip in the first overtime and scored two quick baskets by Love and Levesque. Then Skyline tried to stall, but the plan backfired when Pittman sunk two free throws and then dunked the ball with no time left on the clock to knot the game at 50-50. The second overtime became a defensive contest. Both Love and Pittman were playing with four fouls. Pittman scored three of the five Merced points in that overtime all on free throws. Love scored four of the five Skyline points, one on a follow-through layup, the other a 20-foot shot from the corner

At 4:55 of the third overtime Belfry fouled out of the game. With this, Merced was able to get inside again and took control of the game Skyline put up a fight, but Merced's speed finally wore down the Tro-jans. Skyline missed two late

Skyline coach Lyle Newcomer was anything but depressed about the loss, however. It is the best we've played all year." he said. "In the second half, we played the way I know we can I was proud of the way my kids looked tonight, and that's the first time I can say that all year Merced is the best team I've seen. They are an experienced bunch, who play well together, and they are a strong bunch. I was glad to see that we didn't die after Pittman dunked that shot."

Love scored 25 points on eight field goals and nine of 10 from the

the game.
Robert Saad paced Hillsdale with 12. Craig Wong and sophomore Nick

Ex-Bulldog Gets a Test From UCLA

For those who remember when Gloria Smith was just another flatfooted, out-of-control young basket-ball player at Westmoor High in Daly City .... things have changed

UCLA's women's basketball team, ranked No. 4 in the nation and the defending AIAW champions, clashed with USF Friday night in the Pro-Keds Dons' Tournament with expected results - a 73-58

And who opened for USF at the point guard spot? Slick ball-handling junior guard, Gloria Smith. Smith, who scored in double figures and was the assist leader for

College of San Mateo's No. 2 state-ranked JC team last year, received a scholarship to USF And Friday night, in her second game, she found herself playing against UCLA's much-herafied potential All-American Denise Curry, as, well as flashy Anita Ortega, one of the nation's fastest

"I guess I was a little nervous at first," confessed the 5-7 Smith with a grin. "It's hard not to keep remembering that they're the national champions.

"But once the game got started, I didn't have time to think about it.

Ortega. Smith and UCLA's veteran 5-8 guard were often paired on a man-to-man defense, and thus were engaged in their own private, oneon-one war up and down the court. There were times when ball-handler Smith just plain left Ortega groping for air on an attempted steal, but there were times when she got picked clean by the UCLA star. But Smith had her moments, and some of her moves with the ball brought a lot of admiring shouts from the hundreds in the USF

Memorial Gym. USF used a tight defense in the first half to stymie UCLA's vaunted fast break, and at one point was ahead of the visitors 22-19, with three minutes left in the first half.

The first of each new month is an occasion for special prayers and cele bration. It is called Rosh Chodesh (the head of the onth) and is observed for one or two days. # Math Game Happiness

If you like math puzzles and card games, "Krypto" may be just the game for you. This is a mind stimulating offering from MPH Games Company. (MPH stands for It's Making People Happy).

"Krypto" is played with a deck of 52 cards. Any number from two to 10 persons can play. This makes it suitable for adults and children.

The card deck comprises the following numbers: three each of numbers one through 17 and one each of 18 through 25.

A dealer is selected by a cut of the cards, the player with the high card dealing first. Thereafter, the winner of each previous hand is the next dealer. Five cards are dealt to each player, numbered-side

As already stated, puzzle loving adults will find this game stimulating and chal-lenging — it may also help develop greater mental alertness. "Krypto" may prove most useful, however, to children from third grade to high school level since it provides excellent practice in the basic math functions and allows students to use their creativity in searching for the solu-

By DAVID R. BARNETT Tokyo railroad station commuters will never forget Hachi, a small terrier dog who was immortalized in bronze. Every morning the tiny dog would go to the station to see his master off for the city and then return at 5 o'clock when his master came home.

One afternoon he went to greet the train and his master was not on it — the little dog did not know that his master had died in the city. Never giving up hope, Hachi went to the station every day for the next ten years — the rest of his life and waited for the 5 o'clock train.

Then when his master did not appear, he went sadly home. When he died, the Government put up a statue of Hachi on the spot where he had waited and sent small replicas to all the schools

Here's the amazing story about a cat named Dolly. Dolly was adopted by some vacationers in an upstate New York summer resort. When the summer was over they returned to New York leaving Dolly behind.

They knew Dolly was expecting a family. One month later, Dolly showed up at their apartment in the city carrying a kitten After a few days she left, but came back at the end of week with another kitten. At the end of five weeks, she had made the trip five times and had her whole family with her in her new home

How did Dolly know how to find one family out of the millions in New York? No one knows.
